

ABSTRACT

A system, method and software product processes configuration information. One or more configuration elements are identified from one or more configuration commands and associated with design elements of an electronic circuit design. Each 5 configuration element is retrieved for at least one design element.